MISSION

Founded in 1999, StreetSquash's mission is to provide consistent, long-term and reliable support to the children, families and schools in Harlem and Newark. By exposing these children to a broad range of experiences and by maintaining the highest standards, StreetSquash aims to help each child realize his or her academic, athletic, and personal potential.

A couple of weeks ago, as I was sitting at my desk with my eyes starting to spin from staring at the screen for too long, someone tapped me on my shoulder. I turned around, and there stood Xavier Harrison, a 30-year-old StreetSquash alumnus, with a sly grin on his face and arms open wide. It had been about a year since I had last seen him, but with any old relationship, you can jump right in, and so we did.

Xavier told me about his current job at iProspect, his recent relocation to the Bronx, and updated me on how things were going with his family. It was 1pm on a Friday, and he had taken a day off from work, his first break after 14 consecutive days on the clock. It was terrific to hear all the great things Xavier was up to, and I enjoyed telling him the latest on work and my family. After he left, it dawned on me how wonderful it was that, on his one day off, he would choose to come to 115th street, simply to catch up and say hi. I thought about why he would come back, and what that said about StreetSquash and the community we have built over the past 19 years.

StreetSquash is about the college prep, the homework help, the counseling, and of course, the squash. But it's really about much more than that, even though the students, especially the younger ones, may not realize it. StreetSquash, in the end, is a place where students, young and old, feel safe, and welcome, and supported. It is a place with familiar faces, where a 30-year-old can walk in and catch up with old friends. It is a place where, over the December holidays, StreetSquash college students come back to say hello, jump on the squash court, and show off all they've learned from their college teams. But, I again asked myself, what are the necessary ingredients to create a place Xavier would want to return to?

StreetSquash is what it is because of thousands of dedicated people. First and foremost are the staff, board, families, donors, and volunteers. The staff: 30 full-time, passionate, dedicated people who only care about each student's success. The board: 27 professionals who give their time, expertise and resources, with total enthusiasm, and ask for nothing in return. The families: many hundreds of parents and caregivers who are deeply invested in their children's success, and will do everything necessary to help. The donors: foundations, corporations and thousands of individuals who give to StreetSquash every year because they believe their support makes a difference.

The volunteers: the lifeblood of the organization, people from 15 years old to 86, coming to help on the squash courts and in the classrooms, moving the needle each and every day.

Every group plays a critical role in our success, and with over 250 students in our core after-school program, and over 100 college and post-college StreetSquash alumni, it is no small task to ensure that we are doing quality work every day. Each person who has made a contribution, or helped a high school senior with her college essay, or worked with a 6th grader on his forehand, played a part in building and sustaining the community to which Xavier still feels so connected. And, as is the case with any living organism, which StreetSquash most definitely is, it requires constant care and nurturing.

We remain deeply grateful to the entire StreetSquash community for their continued commitment to the work and passion for the mission.

Hundreds more Xaviers in the pipeline, so stay tuned.

With thanks,
George Polsky

ENAYSIA, Class of 2018

"StreetSquash has been life-changing," Enaysia, Class of 2018, remarked confidently. "It has without a doubt shaped me into the person I am today."

Enaysia first learned about the program when StreetSquash presented at our partner school, University High School, to recruit new students. Despite several of her friends already participating in the program, Enaysia was hesitant to join.

"I didn't really take any interest in it; I had never even heard of squash before!" Enaysia exclaimed. After a handful of persuasive conversations, she was finally convinced to join the program.

She recalled that first day of tryouts with a smile: "I loved it so much and never looked back." Five years later, Enaysia is one of StreetSquash's greatest ambassadors.

Since joining the program, her work ethic has improved exponentially. "I've always been a strong scholar," she explained, "but if it wasn't for StreetSquash, I would not have the work ethic that I have today." She is grateful for the communication between her academic staff at StreetSquash and the teachers at her school. She knows if she doesn't fully understand something in class, she will come to StreetSquash and learn it there.

When asked what motivated Enaysia to improve her study habits, she replied with one word: "squash." Without good grades, Enaysia can't compete in squash tournaments or travel outside of the program. Despite her original indifference towards the sport, Enaysia now carries a deep passion for squash. "I'm grateful I will have it with me for the rest of my life. I can't picture my life without it."

Perhaps most important to Enaysia - even more than academics and squash - is the community she is surrounded by and the people she has met throughout her journey at StreetSquash. "StreetSquash is a true family. If I ever had a problem, either in school or in life, I would come talk to my staff," she explained as she listed off the staff members who have meant so much to her over the years. "We have nicknames, even secret languages, that only StreetSquash would know. It's a second home here. You walk in and you are greeted with open arms."

Enaysia will be among the first in her class to graduate from StreetSquash in Newark. Upon graduation from high school, Enaysia plans to attend college, major in psychology, and make frequent visits back to her home away from home in Newark. "StreetSquash supported me so much, and I want to give back to the program that gave me so much."

ISSEY, Class of 2019

From the moment that Issey, Class of 2019, joined StreetSquash as a sixth-grader, he focused his energy on constantly improving his participation in the program. Issey is a naturally outgoing person, with a positive attitude and a desire to succeed. Whether he was receiving homework help in the classroom or performing drills on the squash courts, he was always striving to be better, stronger, and more prepared for greatness. "Issey gives his all every day and motivates his teammates to do the same," remarked Senior Squash Director Edgardo Gonzalez.

Issey is one of StreetSquash's most dedicated participants. Not only does Issey attend the program a minimum of five days each week, but his commute is more than twice as long than that of most of his teammates. Edgardo shared his impression of Issey: "He is completely committed to StreetSquash. He travels from Brooklyn to practice every day, which can take him over two hours."

Through his positive attitude and efforts at StreetSquash, Issey earned a number of opportunities outside of his typical squash and academic sessions. He began to play in the NY Squash League, where he has competed against adults from around New York City. Playing in the league is one his favorite aspects of StreetSquash: it combines his passion for meeting new people with his favorite sport, squash. Through his interactions on court, Issey has learned to focus his energy and find positive ways to respond to challenges.

In tenth grade, Issey began attending overnight college prep trips with his teammates. Never afraid to ask questions, he would trail the tour guide at every school, asking about specific majors offered and the extracurriculars on campus. That spring, Issey visited Citigroup headquarters for a professional development outing. As some students struggled to stay engaged through the presentation of a stock market simulation, Issey had a slew of questions prepared, keen on learning as much information as possible. Through these opportunities, Issey used his enthusiasm and curiosity to his benefit in an effort to prepare himself for his future.

Perhaps the greatest use of Issey's passion for people, service, and StreetSquash, has been as a participant on the Student Leadership Council. In 2016, having gained the respect of his teammates and peers, Issey was elected to co-captain his team on the SLC. Issey and his peers on the SLC have initiated community service drives, peer engagement events, and student-led tournaments with members of the NY Squash community.

Through the opportunities that Issey has secured through StreetSquash - meeting new people, learning a new sport, touring schools, visiting companies, giving back to his community and others around him - he has learned to utilize his skill-set and has matured into a focused, driven, and ambitious young adult. "StreetSquash motivates me to be better every day," Issey reflected. "The program has taught me so much about myself. I have learned how to communicate better, how to interact with people outside of my community, and how to open doors to create new, valuable opportunities for my life."

“I joined StreetSquash because I wanted something to do after school” explained Hakeem Elliot, StreetSquash Class of 2012. “There were hardly any extracurriculars at my school. There was basketball, maybe flag football depending on the faculty that would run it, but that was it.”

Hakeem, then an active and curious eighth grader, jumped at the opportunity to join StreetSquash, and quickly learned he would be getting far more than just a place to go after school.

“At StreetSquash I received support, I learned a new sport, and I met new people who I just wanted to spend time with: the students, the staff, everyone.”

After completing his first year in the program, Hakeem began to prioritize his academics, with the full intention of attending a top-tier university. His attendance at StreetSquash was close to 100%, and his grades improved across the board. Although Hakeem didn’t feel particularly challenged in high school, he had the support and guidance of StreetSquash to help him stay on track.

“The staff motivated me. The program motivated me. I realized that if I put in the time and the effort, StreetSquash could offer me so many resources that I never would have had – standardized test prep, college application support, financial aid assistance. StreetSquash was where I first learned that hard work does pay off.”

And it’s true. Through Hakeem’s commitment and diligence to his studies and to the program, he matriculated at New York University in the fall of 2011.

“My transition to college was hard. I was coming from a high school of 50 students where I rarely felt challenged. I was comfortable,” Hakeem explained. “When I got to NYU, I was constantly challenged. Between my home life and a new school, the stress was becoming unmanageable.”

Overwhelmed with a new school, a new environment, and 23,000 undergraduates who were complete strangers, Hakeem knew exactly where to turn to regain a sense of comfort and support. “I just needed people to listen to me, to help me advocate for myself, and that’s what StreetSquash did.”

At StreetSquash, Hakeem sought guidance from our full-time alumni support staff and others who had gotten to know him since joining the program six years prior.

Over time, Hakeem found his bearings at NYU. He played on the club squash team, became a member of Alpha Phi Delta, and mentored first and second year NYU students. Despite his busy schedule, he still finds time to make regular visits to StreetSquash, attending our weekly alumni squash nights and being a founding member of the StreetSquash Alumni Board.

“I come back for the people, and to return to the same space I’ve known for so long. I don’t know where I would be without it.”

“I wasn’t open-minded before I joined StreetSquash. I saw classmates finish high school, stay in the city, and go to community college. I just assumed that was my plan also, that staying in the city was my only option,” recalled Brandy Williamson, StreetSquash Class of 2014.

“Then I joined StreetSquash,” Brandy reflected fondly. “I learned the sport of squash, I visited so many different colleges, I went to different states to compete. I became more open-minded and started to see more opportunities for myself.”

By the time Brandy was a senior in high school, she knew she was destined to play squash in college. Sure enough, Brandy applied early decision to Mount Holyoke College and proudly matriculated at MHC in the fall of 2014.

“My transition to college wasn’t very difficult, especially compared to many of my peers from high school,” Brandy explained. “Not only had I visited so many college campuses with StreetSquash, but I gained so much insight from the StreetSquash students who had graduated before me. They helped prepare me for the college experience, how to handle professors, new classes - everything.”

As a first year student at Mount Holyoke, Brandy played at the number one position on the women’s varsity squash team. Despite Brandy’s transition to a new school, a new community, and a new team, she quickly became a leader and rose to the challenges with ease.

“I cannot say enough about Brandy and how much she has impressed me,” said Head Coach Erin Robson. “I have coached several college All-Americans at Vassar and then at Williams. Brandy beats them all in so many different ways. I could easily see her as captain of the team next year because of her effective leadership and confidence. She has the complete respect of her teammates.”

Since her first year, Brandy has continued to play at the top of the ladder, while also balancing a Math major, membership in the Mount Holyoke College Conscious Poets Society, and role as a resident assistant for first-year students. All the while, she has still made time to come back to StreetSquash on holiday breaks and summer vacations.

“In high school, I was motivated to stay in the program because of the alumni that came back to visit. It was so inspiring. For me, it’s only right to come back and show the students, ‘if I can do it, you can do it too.’”

For Brandy, it is the StreetSquash family - the students, the alumni, the staff - that have kept her motivated throughout all of these years.

“StreetSquash is so supportive. That’s what I take away from the program: the support they provided me when I joined in 8th grade, through my senior year in college.”

THE EUNS

William Eun grew up alongside StreetSquash. As William was learning to play squash at the Harvard Club, so too were our own StreetSquash students. William's father, David, who joined the Board of Directors in 2016, would see our students at the Harvard Club and was always impressed with the students and mission of StreetSquash through those interactions.

In 2013, William and his brother, Bennett, were the first members of the family to formally rally behind the program. Aged twelve and eight, respectively, they independently solicited individual donations through their participation in the StreetSquash Jr. Cup, a tournament-fundraiser for junior squash players in NYC. Their success in raising funds for StreetSquash was not just a testament to their work ethic, but a clear reflection of their distinct passion for the sport and the program.

"I grew to love playing squash, thinking about squash, watching pro squash, reading about squash, making friends through squash and now, through StreetSquash, even beginning to teach and share my passion for squash with others," said William.

"At StreetSquash, I have met so many squash players: students, staff, volunteers, coaches, ex-college players and even many visiting and local pros. Getting to meet and know like-minded squash players who have a common goal of developing their game, sharing their passion for the game and caring about one another's progress has shown me what a real community can be. At StreetSquash, everyone cares for each other, especially for the students and families of Harlem."

William's mother, Rochelle, believes StreetSquash offers as much to her family as she and her family offer to the program. "StreetSquash has helped our family engage and extend beyond ourselves, thinking about other communities and people who are fellow New Yorkers but lead very different lives. Rather than thinking about our family helping other people, we look to StreetSquash as a means to engage in meaningful ways with others around things that we are passionate about: children, education, and of course, squash. The benefits flow both ways."

William, who is now sixteen, hopes to see more volunteers get involved with the program. "Getting to know the StreetSquash staff and other volunteers, especially George Polsky who always has an encouraging word, has made me believe in the mission of StreetSquash even more. The true compassion and dedication everyone brings to working or volunteering there has been eye-opening. I hope other young volunteers can experience this as well."

William, David,
Rochelle, and Bennett

THE MULLERS

"In my first conversation with George about StreetSquash, he said, 'Squash is only a hook to get kids in the door. We are so much more than that. We are trying to give a chance to kids who may not otherwise have one,' recalled StreetSquash Board Member Eric Muller. "I have always been struck by George's passion and commitment to the work – he never loses sight of the underlying mission of the program."

Since joining the board in 2012, Eric continues to be inspired by StreetSquash's results. "What is great about StreetSquash is that it works – the college matriculation and graduation rates are top notch, and the program's alumni are an impressive group of young people."

Eric's enthusiasm for the program and his confidence in our work is evidenced by his actions. Over the last five years, Eric has captained a Goldman Sachs team in StreetSquash's annual fundraiser, the StreetSquash Cup. Every summer, Eric leads a group of GS employees for a Community Teamworks service day at the SL Green StreetSquash Center. Most recently, Eric has influenced his own family members to become active players in the StreetSquash community. His willingness to go to bat for StreetSquash and introduce the program at work and at home is what makes board members like Eric critical to our success.

"It is nice to have something that we all do together," said his wife, Lydia, who joined the StreetSquash Newark Board of Directors in 2017. "Our lives have been enriched by the tremendous people we meet and are fortunate to spend time with as a result of the program."

Eric and Lydia's son, Simon, aged fourteen, is equally as invested in StreetSquash. In the spring of 2017, Simon was one of ten Pingry School students to participate in the 7th Annual StreetSquash Jr. Cup. Over the course of two months, Simon and his classmates collectively raised over $9,000 for StreetSquash. In addition to fundraising, Simon and his teammates at The Pingry School have had the opportunity to meet and compete against their contemporaries in the program through special squash events at The Pingry School. "These events are so important because both sets of students have the opportunity to broaden their own experiences by interacting with a different community through a sport that they love," explained Lydia.

Moving forward, the Mullers are most excited about the prospect of a permanent facility in Newark. "We're inspired by the opportunity to grow the program and to provide opportunities to more students and families in Newark. It is incredibly gratifying to be involved in a program that makes a tangible impact in the lives of these kids."

Simon, and Lydia

LOOKING AHEAD: A PERMANENT HOME IN NEWARK

Plans are well underway to build a permanent facility for StreetSquash Newark. In order to serve more children, and work with them in their community, StreetSquash needs to have its own courts and classrooms that hundreds of students and families can call home.

WHERE

- Downtown Newark
- Located in walking distance to partner schools
- Near major transportation hubs and easy access to city bus lines

WHAT

- 8 ASB squash courts and locker rooms
- 4 classrooms, a library, and meeting rooms for one-on-one sessions with social workers
- Administrative offices for up to 20 staff

WHY

- StreetSquash currently operates out of 3 borrowed facilities, with no site control
- Students and staff must travel up to 45 minutes each day to get to program sites
- Without our own home, StreetSquash cannot control its long-term destiny

TOTAL EXPENSES	$3,083,946	$3,317,713

StreetSquash is grateful to have received approximately $160,000 in FY16 and $170,000 in FY17 in the form of in-kind donations.

NOTE: StreetSquash's Management & General expense category reflect costs associated with owning our own facility, the SL Green StreetSquash Center. While this category remains relatively high due to these expenses, we are confident that the ability to operate all of our programs out of this facility enhances the quality of our program immeasurably. Further, owning our own facility allows us to mitigate our program costs by avoiding rental costs, which can be quite costly.
